

The Shore and the Sea

By Juan Miller

We can never be one,
You and me;
For I am the shore,
And you are the sea.

I am the light,
And you are the dark;
I am the pen,
While you are the mark.

Since we can't be one,
Let's just be friends;
Working together,
Until bitter end.

With me advancing,
And you receding;
With you following,
While I am leading.

Let us come so close,
Though never we touch;
No matter how hard we try,
Or want to so much.

So let us just be friends,
You and me;
The sword and the stone,
The lock and the key.

No vow can hold us,
No matter what price;
Life is a gamble,
A throw of the dice.

But see what a glory,
Our friendship can be;
Held together only by love,
Like the shore and the sea.
